

Kære[FORNAVN]

Jeg er samen med min kone Colette i Ungarn. Vi skal stille en Skamstøtte op i samarbejde med borgmesterne i Budapest- her er en lille skriv om det og lidt andet.

Efter den danske tekst kommer der en mere grundig redegørelse, som desværre kun er skrevet på engelsk

Kærlig hilsen
Jens Galschiøt

Pressemeddelelse og situationsrapport 2. marts.kl 19:00 fra Budapest fra Jens Galschiøt, som netop har opstillet et eksemplar af The Pillar of Shame i byen.

Besøget i Budapest i Ungarn er præget af Ruslands krig mod Ukraine.

Fynboer på vej til Moldovia

For nogle par timer siden blev jeg ringet op af min søn, Kasper Galschiøt Markus, som til min store overraskelse fortalte, at han var 35 km fra Budapest. Jeg troede, at han var i Danmark. Historien er, at han sammen med 5 gæve fynboer er på vej til Moldovia i 2 danske biler for at hjælpe med at hente flygtninge fra Ukraine væk fra grænsen til Moldovia og køre dem hen til de lidt større byer i Moldovia, så de kan komme højere op i Europa.

De havde ikke tid til at besøge mig og være med til The Pillar of Shame opstillingen. De skulle til Moldavia hurtigst muligt. Det siger noget om at der foregår tusindvis af private initiativer både i Danmark, i hele Europa og det oplever vi også her i Ungarn.

Det hotel vi bor på i Budapest er fyldt med hundredvis afrikanere fra Nigeria, der er flygtet fra Ukraine

De er alle flygtninge fra Ukraine nu, men har før studeret på universiteter der. Det er en skønsom blanding af børn, kvinder og mænd. Men de er alle ved godt mod efter at være sluppet ud af Ukraine. Når vi møder dem i elevatoren, takker de for, at Europa har taget sig af dem, og de udviser stor taknemmelighed.

Man bliver sgu helt stolt på Europas vegne. Det hele er organiseret af Budapest kommune, som er ret progressiv, og det er netop dem vi har været sammen med hele dagen.

Opstilling af The Pillar of Shame i Budapest kl 12. d. 2. marts

The pillar of Shame blev opstillet på hjørnet af " Free Hong Kong Road" og "Uyghur Martyrs ut", det sted, hvor Kina har givet lovning på støtte til opbygningen af Budapests nye universitet.

Budapest Kulturforvaltning havde fremstillet en flot sokkel, som dannede base for den 3 meter høje skulptur, så den ser meget statslig ud med en højde på 5 meter. Der er tale om en slags generalprøve på en lang række skulpturer, der skal opstilles permanent på universiteter i verden.

Jeg var den første taler og fortalte The Pillar of Shame's og demokratibevægelsens historie i Hongkong. Jeg sluttede min tale med at kæde det totalitære Kinas angreb på dens egen demokratibevægelse sammen med den totalitære leder Putins angreb på Ukraine.

For at understrege min pointe overrakte jeg 2 kobberrelieffer af svinehunde, med teksten "Don't Feed Your Inner Beast", som handle om, at magten kan korrumpere alle, også de to borgmestre, som fik overrakt skulpturerne.

Efter mig talte Budapests kulturborgmester Mayor Krisztina Baranyi, som satte fokus på problemerne med, at Ungarns Victor Orban med støtte fra et totalitært Kina, bygger Ungarns største universitet.

Hun fortalte også, at man i Budapest have iværksat en masse tiltag for at forhindre byggeriet af universitetet bl.a. en underskriftindsamling for at få beslutningen omstødt ved en landsdækkende folkeafstemning, og et ret morsomt, tiltag hvor Budapest kommune har omdøbt alle vejene ind til den plads, hvor universitetet skal bygges på. Vejene hedder nu "Free Hong Kong Road" og "Uyghur Martyrs Road" og "Dalai Lama Road".

Næste taler var Chief Mayor of Budapest, Gergely Karácsony, der er en meget berømt mand i Ungarn. Han stillede op som en meget powerfuld præsident kandidat imod Ungarns nuværende præsident Vitor Orban, men valgte at trække sig, så oppositionen kunne stå i samlet flok imod Orban, der skal genvælges først i april.

Overborgmesteren satte i sin tale fokus på præsident Vitor Orbans samarbejde med Kina og hans samarbejde med Putin, der nu er ved at smadre Ukraine. Han fortalte, at selv om de har samlet over 200.000 stemmer sammen for at kræve en folkeafstemning, trækker Vitor Orban det ud imod alle regler for at undgå, at han får et nederlag før det kommende valg (15. april) i denne meget prekære sag om samarbejdet med Kina. Også situationen med at Orban forbyder al transport over Ungarns territorier med våben til forsvaret af Ungarns naboland Ukraine, tog borgmesteren afstand fra.

Skulpturen stod helt fantastisk i solskinnet og vil senere blive flyttet ind til Budapest centrum, hvor den skal bruges i forbindelse med nogle nationale mærkedage. Den skal stå der ca 1 måned

Pillar of shame is set up today on "Free Hong Kong Road" and "Uyghur Martyrs Road" in Budapest

On March 2, the mayor of Budapest will erect a 3-meter-high copper model of the Pillar of Shame at the site where Hungarian President Victor Orbán will build a giant university backed by China.

The decision on the university has sparked widespread protests among Hungarians, who have gathered over 200,000 signatures to get a referendum on construction. The city of Budapest has renamed the roads down to the site where the university will be built, so that the university will be located between three roads called "Free Hong Kong Road" and "Uyghur Martyrs and Dalai Lama Square"

The opposition should make Hungarian President Viktor Orbán think twice - is it wise to throw oneself into the arms of China's totalitarian leader Xi Jinping when he is up for election already in April.

He already has an explanation problem with his friendship with Russia's Putin, another totalitarian leader who has thrown himself over Ukraine and is in the process of murdering to get his empire dream come true.

Viktor Orbán has supported Putin by banning the supply of arms supplies through Hungary to the Ukrainians. They stand with the jerk against the wall while one of the world's largest military machines tries to wipe out all resistance

A new friendship with a Chinese dictator that he will influence generations of university students will not adorn in the upcoming election campaign. Hungary's decision-makers might have to tame over the call engraved in The Pillar of Shame what it says "the old can not kill the young for all eternity"

An erection of the Pillar of Shame will in Hungary almost function as a four double monument

A Pillar of Shame over a Communist Party in China that chose to kill its own students because they stifled cautious reforms and the right to freedom of expression in the 1989 peaceful occupation of Tiananmen Square

A Pill of Shame over a new Chinese totalitarian leader who has shattered the dream of democracy in Hong Kong and broken all his promises to allow them to retain their Western freedoms if they were allowed to annex Hong Kong

A Pillar of Shame over that focuses on Europe being in the middle of a war created by a totalitarian leader Putin who has grown up in the heart of Europe.

A Pill of Shame over that a leader in Hungary with totalitarian tendencies making an alliance with a totalitarian China about it building a university it will characterize Hungarian youth for decades

the press release issued by Budapest about the visit

Model of world-famous removed monument Pillar of Shame arrives in Budapest The sculpture remembers the victims of Tiananmen Square

At the request of Krisztina Baranyi, a version of the world-famous bronze statue of the Danish artist Jens Galschiøt will be exhibited in Ferencváros, at the Fudan University site in Budapest. The artist's statue of the same title was removed by the Hong Kong authorities on December 23, 2021, from the square in front of the city's university. The model will be on view on Free Hong Kong road from March 2nd. Jens Galschiøt, a Danish artist will also arrive in Budapest on this occasion.

Krisztina Baranyi has invited the Pillar of Shame to Budapest to draw attention to the more than 200.000 signatures collected more than two months ago in favor of a referendum on the proposed Budapest campus of the Shanghai-based Fudan University, financed by a 1.3-billion-euro loan from China Development Bank. According to the Hungarian constitution, 200,000 signatures are needed for a question to initiate a referendum, yet the Hungarian Parliament hasn't given a green light to this.

Critics say the cost of the campus would be higher than what the government spends each year on running all of the country's state-run universities. The contract is classified, just like the other big Chinese project in Hungary, the construction of a new Belgrade-Budapest railway.

The Pillar of Shame is part of a multi-part sculpture series and all of them commemorates a massacre. According to the artist, the Budapest version of the Hong Kong statue is linked to the others by having the same text on the pedestal: The old cannot kill the young forever.

According to the artist Jens Galschiøt, this text not only reminds us of what happened to the Hong Kong-based Pillar of Shame by Chinese command, but Russia's war in Ukraine also gives a sad topicality to the work exhibited in Budapest, as „Putin is the past himself ”.

Jens Galschiøt, the sculptor of The Pillar of Shame, issued the following statement in connection with his exhibition in Ferencváros:

"I hope that this artistic manifestation will show China that the Hungarian people will not tolerate an education policy that is under the influence of one of the largest totalitarian countries in the world. A country that in no way shares the values of Europe and Hungary. A country that has both killed their student movement in 1989 and a country that has just crushed the Hong Kong student movement and put thousands of students in jail for defending their right to democracy and freedom of speech.

One would think that precisely Hungary with their historical references, where after 2 World Wars and being a subject to totalitarian Soviet supremacy had had enough of dictators. It seems almost absurd that the government is now voluntarily giving a new totalitarian regime influence in the country. Instead of this Hungarian students at the Hungarian Universities should learn about democracy and debate how the world is developing.

Hungary should know better - There ain't no such thing as a free lunch."

The eight-meter-high work demolished in Hong Kong was the last statue to commemorate the June 4, 1989 massacre in Tiananmen Square in the Chinese city-state.

The Pillar of Shame has stood at the University of Hong Kong for 24 years. On June 4, the student government each year, with its cleansing, remembered that in 1989, on this day, units of the Chinese People's Liberation Army in the Tiananmen Square in Beijing had stifled a demonstration by a crowd demanding democratic reforms. In addition to commemoration, it was also a symbol of Hong Kong liberties.

The removal of The Pillar of Shame was officially ordered by the University of Hong Kong in October 2021, according to their statement "based on an external legal advise". It was first covered with sheets reaching the ceiling, and then on Christmas night the work was broken up and placed in a container.

This version of the statue, which has aroused huge international interest, has not been exhibited anywhere since last December.

The statue will be presented on March 2, 2022, at noon by district IX. Mayor Krisztina Baranyi, sculptor Jens Galschiøt and Chief Mayor of Budapest Gergely Karácsony.

Venue of the press conference: district IX., at the cross of Free Hong Kong Road and Uyghur Martyrs Road (Front area of the former Great Market warehouse).

Budapest statement from Jens Galschiøt

I have been pleased to receive the invitation to exhibit in my copper model of the Pillar of Shame in Budapest.

The sculpture I exhibit in Budapest is a model that is a model for my large sculpture in Hong Kong and is not a copy, but an independent work of art, it was created already in 1996 and is with a plinth over 4.5 meters high.

The original sculpture was brutally removed by the Hong Kong authorities. It has stood at Hong Kong University for over 24 years as the memorial to the Tiananmen Square Massacre, June 4, 1989, where China in the center of Beijing, killing and arresting thousands of pro-democracy protesters.

In 2021 in Hong Kong, the 8.5 meter high sculpture was removed on Christmas night 22-23 December, thus also becoming a symbol of the crushing of Hong Kong students and the democracy movement in Hong Kong. This removal of the sculpture triggered a global outcry and activated artists and activists around the world and the sculpture became the most talked about work of art on the globe in 2021.

I am still working on getting the remains of the sculpture out of Hong Kong and sent to Denmark. China's destruction of the symbol of freedom of speech and democracy in Hong Kong is a failed declaration for Hong Kong University, which should stand for intellectual freedom, a place where all opinions and views could be broken freely and where new ideas could emerge. But also a place where students preserved and researched the history of mankind and China. That commitment has been abandoned by Hong Kong University and surrendered to the constricting ties of censorship due to China's pressure. It is a kind of spiritual intellectual self-castration.

It is this self-suppression that one risks Budapest if one built a university for Chinese money. China we with unflinching certainty to try to push their own history perception down over the new university in Budapest and pressure the teachers to convey China's version of reality with censorship of all opinions that deviate from China's understanding of the world. They have done this everywhere in the world where they have gained influence and they will do the same in Hungary

It is therefore with pride that I erect this particular sculpture in Budapest and in the square in front of the place where one wants to build a university paid for by China.

I hope that this artistic manifestation will show China that the Hungarian people will not tolerate an education policy that is under the influence of one of the largest totalitarian countries in the world. A country that in no way shares the values of Europe and Hungary. A country that has both killed their own student movement in 1989 and a country that has just crushed the Hong Kong student movement and put thousands of students in jail for defending their right to democracy and freedom of speech.

It is absurd that this particular country is now one of the main sponsors of one of Hungary's educational institutions, where thousands of Hungarian students have to learn about democracy and debate how the world is developing.

One would think that precisely Hungary with their historical references, where after 2 World Wars they were subject to a totalitarian Soviet supremacy had had enough of dictators.

It seems almost absurd that the government is now voluntarily giving a new totalitarian regime influence in the country. Hungary should know better - There ain't no such thing as a free lunch.

I look forward to exhibiting in Budapest and hope my art can help create a good and constructive debate about China, independence, education and freedom of speech

Denmark honors the creator of The Pillar of Shame

There was excitement to the last, if it was dared to give the artist, Jens Galschiøt, the great honor of becoming Citizen of Funen of the Year 2021.

The award is founded by the daily newspaper Fyens Stiftstidende and is one of the major honorary awards in Denmark. The recognition of Mr. Galschiøt was given to honor the artist's work to defend human rights in the world and a special honor to his activities in Hong Kong against the Chinese attacks on democracy. On the occasion of the award ceremony an art glass plate with The Pillar of Shame engraved was given to the artist.

It was a rather controversial decision by the judging panel set up by the newspaper. The city of Odense, the hometown, in which the artists' activities are based, is also the birthplace of Denmark's most famous author Hans Christian Andersen, and therefore the city has an extensive collaboration with China regarding Hans Christian Andersen. The city has just invested $50 million in building a brand new large museum that will attract thousands of Chinese tourists.

With the choice of Jens Galschiøt for Citizen of Funen of the Year 2021, the judges chose to defy China's potential reprisals.

The artist himself was very surprised by the appointment and stated:

"I am very surprised and happy to be Citizen of Funen of the Year 2021. I had feared that the judges would not dare to show me this honor. This is almost equivalent to giving China a middle finger that says that no matter how much China tries to censor their history and change reality, we in Denmark stand on our right to freedom of expression, also when it comes to Chinese issues, and our right to give honor to our own citizens, no matter what China might think of it. I am happy and proud to live in a country that does not give in to China's pressure, and supports the criticism of China's abuses of democracy and human rights in both Hong Kong and China. There are many countries that could learn something from that."

Mr. Galschiøt's sculpture, The Pillar of Shame, is still in Hong Kong. It was brutally dismantled and packed in a container on December 22nd during an extensive operation at Hong Kong University. In the middle of the night, a demolition company came together with over 50 guards and covered the entire area where the more than 8 meter high sculpture was located with barricades and tarpaulins and in the shadow of the darkness they broke the sculpture down with pneumatic drills and cranes. The demolition took place while a powerful cyclone ravaged all over Hong Kong, but even though the weather gods tried to prevent the demolition, the many construction workers managed to break the sculpture down and drive it away from University of Hong Kong.

The Pillar of Shame sculpture has been at the university for 24 years and was the only memorial on Chinese soil of the Tiananmen Square massacre in Beijing in 1989, in which China killed students who had demanded more democracy in China by occupying Tiananmen Square.

With the breakdown and removal from the University of Hong Kong, The Pillar of Shame has now also become the symbol of the crushing of Hong Kong students' struggle for freedom of speech and democracy in Hong Kong and of China definitely breaking their promise and guarantees to the international community that that Hong Kong could preserve their political system and freedom. China promised Hong Kong "one country, two systems", but it has now become "one country, one system" with all that entails around lack of freedom of expression, and an authoritarian regime without legal guarantees, freedom of expression and participation for the individual citizen.

At the moment, Jens Galschiøt's legal representative in Hong Kong is working to arrange transport the remains of the sculptures out of Hong Kong and to Denmark. But there are many obstacles to transportation, and several crane and transportation companies have resigned to perform the task as they fear retaliation from the Chinese state. The new security law in Hong Kong prohibits speaking out and engaging in activities that could be perceived as a criticism of China, and companies fear being accused of violating this law. Mr. Galschiøt hopes to succeed in getting the large sculpture out during February.

In connection with the removal of the sculpture from Hong Kong, Mr. Galschiøt says:

"It is with great sadness that I now experience that there is no longer room for my sculpture, The Pillar of Shame, in Hong Kong. That's where it's supposed to be. It is shameful how Hong Kong has become a place where the right to freedom of expression and democracy is now so suppressed that Hong Kong can now be compared to other authoritarian countries, which with the help of aggressive police are subjecting their people to massive repression and use a consequent judicial system as weapon against their own people. An aggression that removes Hong Kong from being a vibrant, dynamic metropolis with diversity and enterprise, and where information about the world could be shared freely, and to being a place that must now be considered under an authoritarian regime without legal certainty and freedom of expression for the citizens. "

Perhaps it is precisely this situation in Hong Kong that has led the judging committee in Denmark to choose to honor Jens Galschiøt and make him Citizen of Funen of the Year 2021 to emphasize and send a signal to China that they stand behind his criticism of the regime in both China and Hong Kong.

January 1, 2022:

about statements the former University of Hong Kong's council chairman Arthur Li. and a comment from Jens Galschiøt

About my sculpture "The pillar of shame"

(This letter is Google translated and may therefore contain translation errors)

I just received the following info from the press (Mingpao Hong Kong) about statements the former University of Hong Kong's council chairman Arthur Li the words from the former Chairman of HKU Council Mr Arthur Li mentioning you and the pillar of shame which used to be at HKU. He described that the pillar of shame is a "scam" / "lie" that it was actually made by you for the Oklahoma City Bombing but not the Tiananmen massacre. He also said that neither the US government nor other countries accepted the pillar of shame so you sent it to Hong Kong.

I strongly dissociate myself from what the former University of Hong Kong's council chairman Arthur Li is saying. It is strange and completely unacceptable to be called a liar by a man who advocates taking down works of art that try to remember and mark Chinese history.

It is Arthur Li who is trying to obliterate history and wants to oppress everyone who is in favor of citizens' free rights to debate, and to remember what is happening in Chinese society both now and in the past. It is a disgrace that the monument "The pillar and shame" has been removed with violence from Honkkong University and it is a disgrace that the university people can go in to wipe out history.

It's not me who's lying and manipulating the story, but perhaps Arthur Li is probably trying to create a breeding ground for a lie that the June 4, 1989 Tiananmen Square Massacre never took place.

I made created The Pillar of Shame in 1993 to 1995. It was my intention to create a monument that remembered various landmark crimes against humanity around the world. The same sculpture was to be erected in several different places in the world to mark these crimes.

Therefore, all the different peoples are represented the sculpture, Asians, Africans, European, indigenous peoples from the American continent ect, so that the same sculpture could mark different crime. Only the large shelf was very special for each country.

The sculpture was called "The Nobel Prize of Shame" by the press. And China received the first "award" for the Tiananmen Square Massacre in 1989.

It is a very important point and an artistic decision that the sculpture should be the same everywhere it should mark a crime, to emphasize that the essence of these crimes in the world is the same no matter where they took place

I decided that the first "pillar of shame" should be erected in Hong Kong in 1997, to mark the June 4 Tiananmen Square Massacre in 1989.

I presented it in Rome, Italy in 1995, during a major international meeting. I got a lot of suggestions on where to put up a copy of The Pillar of Shame. But I chose the first one to be erected in Hong Kong in 1997 and I made a special copy and a special plinth for Hong Kong.

Some years after the year 2000, I set up a "Pillar of Shame" in Mexico to mark the killing of the indigenous people and in 2001, I set up another one in Brazil to mark the massacre of the landless peasants and the struggle for land in Brazil. It is still my intention that I will line up more in the world.

The pillar of shame in Hong Kong, is the most important of these sculptures, as it was the first to be erected and it has formed a school for the 2 other "Pillar of Shame" "in the world.

"The old cannot kill the young forever" chiseled into the base of "The pillar of Shame" is a quote taken from the students at Tiananmen Square in 1989 and this quote is on the sculptures erected in Mexico and Brazil

Yours sincerely

Press release from the Hong Kong Committee in Norway:

A monument to freedom and democracy in Hong Kong disappears

Today, Danish Jens Galschiøt's sculpture Pillar of Shame (Skamstøtten) is removed from campus at Hong Kong University. The sculpture is a memorial to those who died in the massacre that crushed the protests in Tiananmen Square in Beijing on June 4, 1989.

Galschiøt, who himself owns the sculpture, has repeatedly approached Hong Kong authorities to come to an arrangement so that the sculpture can be brought to Denmark. He has then explained that special competence is required so that the sculpture does not become broken. Galschiøt has not been informed in advance of the current operation. Testimonials indicates that there is a great danger that the sculpture is about to be destroyed.

This action joins the ranks of the Hong Kong authorities' attempts to erase out the memories in Hong Kong of the massacre. Previously, the authorities closed June 4-museum in Hong Kong, denied the people their statutory right to mark the crime, forcibly dissolved the organization working for freedom and democracy in mainland China, arrested the organization's leaders for alleged violations of the Security Act, and restricted access to the June 4 Museum website.

The Hong Kong Committee in Norway condemns the authorities' attempts to write about and falsify the story of the historically essential, peaceful uprising in support of democracy and freedom in China. If the unconfirmed reports of destruction turn out to bring correctness, there are methods from Mao's cultural revolution that have now come to Hong Kong. This action will then show how Hong Kong's former freedoms are now in free fall.

With its attacks on the population's collective memory of the atrocities of 1989 gives Carrie Lams steer us associations in the direction of a modern barbarism, with attacks on objective storytelling inspired by George Orwell's Nineteen - four.

Brief background information

The Pillar of Shame was first unveiled during the memorial service at Victoria Park in Hong Kong on 4 June 1997. It was then moved between several of the universities in Hong Kong. From September In 1998, the statue was permanently exhibited at Hong Kong University.

Ahead of the 2008 Summer Olympics, Galschiøt launched the project The Color Orange, there orange color was used to express support for human rights. As part of this the project was Pillar of Shame painted orange in 2008. Since then, the students at Hong

King University painted the statue orange on June 4 each year. They did this again this year, something like may have been the last commemoration of the Hong Kong massacre in a long time

22 december 2021

I'm totally shocked that Hong Kong University is currently destroying the pillar of shame

It is completely unreasonable and a self-immolation against private property in Hong Kong- I have now for over 3 months written to Hong Kong University that I would like to move the sculpture.

But it has been completely impossible to get in touch with them - all my attempts to contact them have been rejected and my lawyer in Hong Kong has also tried to contact them, but failed.

It is my private property and the sculpture belongs to me personally- I have written to them several times and the Hong Kong Alliance has sent out a statement that it is my private property and that they only have it on loan for exhibition at Hong Kong University

So I have to demand that Hong Kong one take care of the sculpture. And I will claim compensation for any damage to the sculpture.

I myself have offered to go to Hong Kong with a team, and remove the sculpture nor have I been given the opportunity, Hong Kong universities will not talk to me.

Countries around the world have offered to receive The Pillar of Shame and the Danish Foreign Minister has offered his help - but there has been no response from Hong Kong universities or other responsible authorities - it is a disgrace and an abuse and shows that Hong Kong has become a brutal place without laws and regulations such as protecting the population, the arts and private property

And it's even more grotesque that they use the Western holiday, Christmas, to carry out the destruction of the artwork.

日回覆律師行關於豎立在黃克競樓平台的「國殤之柱」雕塑安排。（詳見附件）

「國殤之柱」屬於原創作者丹麥雕塑家高志活先生（Mr. Jens Galschiot），於1997年「六四」8周年前，借出「國殤之柱」予支聯會供在香港永久展覽。近日，高志活先生發出公開聲明表示他仍是「國殤之柱」擁有人，而據悉他亦已委託律師跟進「國殤之柱」有關事宜；為此，支聯會認為，未來較合適的做法是由香港大學校方直接與高志活先生代表律師接洽處理。

1998年11月3日，香港大學學生會全民投票通過永久擺放「國殤之柱」，1999年6月4日晚，由港大學生會從維多利亞公園運往香港大學黃克競樓平台永久擺放至今，見證香港回歸中國後的民主和人權發展。高志活先生更於2013年9月26日至10月2日，來港修葺「國殤之柱」和重新髹上橙色。

支聯會清盤人蔡耀昌認為，香港大學作為一個具言論及學術自由的空間，有社會責任及使命保留「國殤之柱」，期望校方依據過往20多年的行事標準，繼續容許「國殤之柱」於港大校園豎立。

Breaking news: The pillar of Shame is being destroyed in these minutes.

The pillar of shame in Hong Kong is being destroyed in these minutes. An hour ago, construction work began to cover the sculpture. And we have received information from the press that it is being dismantled in these minutes

The whole area of Hong Kong University where the sculpture has stood for 24 years has been covered and there is a lot of noise inside behind the curtain.

So it suggests that machines and humans are in the process of breaking down the sculpture.

We encourage everyone to go out to Hong Kong University and document everything that happens with the sculpture,

We have done everything we can to tell the University of Hong Kong that we would very much like to pick up the sculpture and bring it to Denmark.

Check this video from the university in Hong Kong right now:

Herewith a briefing about the situation with the Pillar of Shame

3D Print: A fantastic beautiful 3D scan of the Pillar of Shame in Hong Kong has been posted on the internet for free use see link.

At the moment, many 3D printers are printing copies of the sculpture. I regularly receive photos and emails from people who are working. These small copies are used as small memorials to the Tiananmen Square massacre 4 June 1989 and placed around as both exhibition objects but also as streetart figures.

3D Print it out and join the action and spread it on social media and other platforms.

Take photo of the sculpture located in all possible and impossible places, in front of the local Chinese Embassy, or in the local parliament, on top of Mount Everest, on Mount Hong Kong, in Nepal, and New York.

You can put up copies of the sculpture at your school, university or workplace or around the city - only the imagination sets limits. But be carefull - this is certainly not harmless art.

If you do not have access to a 3D printer, you can use this 3D photo that can be inserted into any photo that you take with your mobile. The effect can be seen from this link when you are logged in to Facebook and open it on your smartphone. Or through Instagram on this link

So the paradox is that in an attempt to remove the monument in Hong Kong, a process has been initiated in which thousands of copies begin to spread all over the globe, keeping the memory of the Tiananmen Square massacre 4 June 1989 alive.

Open letter

I have now been waiting almost 1 month for response from Hong Kong University regarding moving the sculpture, and I have received nothing.

I have therefore today sent the following open letter to the University of Hong Kong and the Hong Kong authorities to clarify the situation regarding The Pillar of Shame

In the letter I write that I would like to pick up the monument of the tiananmen square massacre June 4, 1989. But to be able to do that, I must have security for me and my staff and those I work with in Hong Kong not being arrested.

At the same time, the various authorities in Hong Kong need to be willing to work together to get the sculpture out of Hong Kong. Otherwise it will not be possible. See the letter under this email or download it at the link

They received the letter on 12 Nov and I am still waiting for a reply.

Yours sincerely
Jens Galschiøt

Open letter to The University of Hong Kong and Hong Kong authorities from Jens Galschiøt, the artist behind the Monument of the Tiananmen Square Massacre 1989

My legal representative in Hong Kong has since October 12, 2021, attempted to contact The University of Hong Kong around the removal of the Monument of the Tiananmen Square Massacre 1989. We have also sent a letter to the university's legal representative Mayer Brown and have tried to get clarification and collaboration around the removal.

The Pillar of Shame, as the monument is also called, has for 24 years been exhibited at The University of Hong Kong.

We have not at the time of writing received a reply to our inquiries. I am therefore sending this open letter through the press to reach an agreement on how we can resolve the situation around the monument, which I am the rightful owner of.

I can understand from statements in the press from The University of Hong Kong, that: "a Hong Kong University spokesperson did not directly respond but told Hong Kong Free Press that they are still seeking legal advice and working with related parties to handle the matter in a legal and reasonable manner."

I am very happy to hear this, as I am also interested in resolving the situation and getting started on moving the sculpture.

However, there are issues we must clarify and agree on first:

1. Full cooperation: The University of Hong Kong must enter into a full cooperation with myself to have the sculpture removed, otherwise it will not be possible. I need the university to assist with technical assistance, roadblocks, permits and other advisory support.

2. My presence in Hong Kong is necessary: The sculpture is very difficult to move, and it will require considerable expertise to move it from the area at the university without causing significant and irreparable damage to the costly sculpture. The move will therefore require me to personally come to Hong Kong with my team of staff who, in collaboration with local Hong Kong companies and helpers in Hong Kong, can undertake the work. The sculpture can then be transported out of Hong Kong to Denmark.

3. Immunity from prosecution: I can understand from the press that the introduction of the new security legislation in Hong Kong means that there is a legal basis for arresting foreign nationals who engage in activities that criticize China. A removal of the Monument of The Tiananmen Square Massacre in 1989 will lead to activities and media coverage that could be perceived as criticism of China. Therefore, I will have to get a guarantee that my employees and I will not be prosecuted in relation to the disassemblment and moving of the monument.

I propose that such an agreement is made between the responsible authorities in Hong Kong and in Denmark. I can state that I have twice been refused entry into Hong Kong by the local authorities. The Hong Kong authorities must also guarantee that the local people and companies that I will need to work with in Hong Kong will not be prosecuted because they have helped a foreign artist remove and dismantle the monument.

It will be difficult to move forward with the planning and procedure before we get the above issues clarified. As soon as I have received a positive message about the cooperation from The University of Hong Kong and the Hong Kong authorities, I will start planning the specific procedure for moving the Monument of the Tiananmen Square Massacre 1989.

I have sent this letter to my legal representative in Hong Kong and asked the representative to send the letter to the Hong Kong authorities and The University of Hong Kong's management and responsible authorities.

I believe, it is important to preserve the history of any country, and I am therefore sorry that my monument, which is a memorial to the events at The Tiananmen Square 1989 in China, is no longer welcome. Of course, I would very much have preferred for the monument to stay at The University of Hong Kong, where it has been for 24 years.

However, in full collaboration with both the university and the Hong Kong authorities, I will remove the sculpture and send it to Denmark.

With the hope of a good and constructive cooperation,
Jens Galschiøt

China has attacked art symbol of Tiananmen Square crackdown. We won the first two battles - but everything is uncertain!

We are under attack from China in Hong Kong. In a letter the democracy movement was given a deadline of 4 days to move the 9 m high sculpture, which is a memorial to the Tiananmen square crackdown in 1989, otherwise China would destroy the sculpture that has been standing at Hong Kong University for 24 years.

We are quite pressed for time, so we just send this short newsletter.

Everything has been chaos since, and we have mobilized our networks all over the world to prevent the sculpture from being destroyed. And it's been successful so far.

Thousands of NGOs, artists, activists, politicians and other good people have joined the fight to preserve the sculpture, and we have succeeded to postpone the destruction of the artwork.

At the same time, it has succeeded in setting a new standard for what U.S. law firms can allow themselves to do to help the Chinese government. Part of the pressure to prevent the destruction of the artwork has been directed at getting the law firm Mayer Brown to withdraw from helping Hong Kong University destroy and remove the sculpture. And we succeeded on the 15th of October.

So 2 battles have been won, but it is still uncertain whether we can get the opportunity to get the sculpture out of Hong Kong.

So we need all the help we can get, by informing about China's attacks on art and freedom of speech. If necessary, Forward this email to a friend or create one yourself.

All the activities have been continuously described by a huge press campaign. We have made a selection of the articles here - good reading - you can probably find something from your own country as well.

We have posted our own press releases and all documents in the on Galschiot's website.

Although we have worked ourselves to death, this struggle for art and the Chinese's right to remember their own history is also a very life-affirming experience. The whole process shows that it is possible for ordinary people to enact a little influence on the global stage.

7.380.000 link: A quick Google search word combination "Pillar of Shame" (a word that comes specifically from this sculpture, as we created it ourselves) today gives 7.380.000 links.

"We are still alive". We have written history and shown that there are limits to what the world will allow.

All the best

The monument in Hong Kong

In 1997, I erected an 8 meter tall monument in Hong Kong in memorial of the massacre. This monument is so far still the only memorial about the Tiananmen Square massacre on Chinese soil.

Placing this sculpture in Hong Kong cost me a permanent expulsion from China and two expulsions from Hong Kong. I think it's important that artists, cultural groups, and others that defend human rights use their freedom of speech to tell the story of the massacre. I hope that you will help in doing this.

32 years after the massacre history seems to be tragically repeating itself. Now with Hong Kong as the epicenter for youth demanding their basic Human Rights and the Chinese Government forcefully fighting down the youth. China has passed landmark legislation to force national security laws in Hong Kong, effectively crushing the city's autonomy, removing pro-democratic forces from the parliament and sending pro-democrats in jail.

In February 2020 I erected 'A Pillar of Shame' sculpture in front of the Danish parliament, as a protest against that China is once again using extreme force against youth people demonstrating for their democracy rights, this time in Hong Kong.

The China's National People's Congress are now directly interfering with the justice system and the freedom of speech in Hong Kong, which is an unprecedented violation of the agreement between England and China for the handover of Hong Kong. China has fundamentally changed the status of Hong Kong and basic Human and Democracy rights are no longer respected as they used to be.

I hereby encourage everyone to protest against China's assault on Hong Kong citizens.

Let us remember the youth that lost their life at Tiananmen Square and let us support the youth in Hong Kong, so we will not see the same tragic outcome once again.

Kind regards,
Jens Galschiøt

About Hong Kong at the moment

China's suppression of free speech is spreading to Hong Kong. Galschiøt is just one of many critics who have been denied entry. So the city is deprived of a cultural exchange that is taken for granted in all open democratic societies. The expulsions are a blatant violation of the principle of 'One country – Two systems' that was guaranteed as part of Hong Kong's reunion with China in '97.

In 2013 Galschiøt managed to enter Hong Kong to repair 'The Pillar of Shame'. In these very years Hong Kong stands on the precipice of realizing the 1997 agreements with China, to develop a real democracy in Hong Kong. But they are under a lot of pressure from non-democratic forces. The results of these negotiations are crucial for the future of Hong Kong.

Throughout 2019 and 2020 massive demonstrations in Hong Kong took place. They fought for their basic human rights that China promised Hong Kong's citizens when they took over the country in 1997, But the peaceful demonstrations have been met with comprehensive violent force from Hong Kong's police.

Today China has passed landmark legislation to force national security laws in Hong Kong, effectively crushing the city's autonomy, removing pro-democratic forces from the parliament and sending pro-democrats in jail.

A functioning democracy on Chinese ground, even though only in Hong Kong, is an extremely important symbol for the more than one billion living in mainland China.

About Jens Galschiot:

Danish artist Jens Galschiot has created many socio-critical sculptures and installations through the years. Most often they are placed in public spaces around the world – as needle-sticks and silent reminders of a world that, in his opinion, is out of balance, and where exploitation of the world's resources, inequality and migration are a constant part of the picture.
