Gallery Galschiøt. Museum and Workshop 80

Jens Galschiøt was born in 1954 in Frederikssund, he is married and has three children. He was certified as a construction blacksmith in 1978. He is a self taught silversmith and sculptor. He settled in Odense in 1973, and opened his 2000 m² large studio in 1985, which contains a bronze foundry, a workshop, a gallery, and a sculpture park.

Galschiøt's mode of expression mainly consists of naturalistic and organic forms, which are influenced by the Spanish architect Antoni Gaudí, and the semi-occult style from the Jugend period. In many of his sculptures, 'the void', is as an essential part of his expression: for instance when he exhibits clothing sculptures (with the shape of the body, but void of the body itself), the viewers are encouraged to use their own imagination to fill in the emptiness by using images from their own lives. If he succeeds in doing so the artist has achieved his goal: to make his sculptures and the human imagination work together.

Internationally Galschiøt could be characterized as one of the most significant Danish artists of late modernity (after 1980). His artistic production covers a wide field of expression; from jewellery and small dainty figures, to gigantic, politically emphatic sculptures. He is among the best-known Danish artists abroad. His reputation extends from Hong Kong and Mexico, to Germany, and Spain, and throughout the U.S.A. Apart from his clothing sculptures, Jens Galschiøt creates international happenings to highlight the present imbalance in the world. The first of its kind was 'My Inner Beast' from 1993, which was erected in 20 European cities as a reminder to us all that Humanism is merely a thin coating disguising the potential brutality of our nature as human beings, that it is a constant struggle to preserve and improve the results Humanism has achieved so far. Another example is 'The Pillar of Shame', which symbolizes the oppression of human rights; it was exhibited for the first time in Hong Kong in 1997.

Galschiøt's fascination of garment objects led to a partnership with the late Erik Mortensen and Jean Voigt. In 1990 Galschiøt created the 'Ringwearer's Jacket'. It was given to Her Majesty, Queen Margaret II on her 50th birthday. The gift was ordered by the Garment Industry's Organisation. The sculpture is now exhibited in the park of Marselisborg Castle, the Queen's residence in Aarhus.

In connection with Hans Christian Andersen's 200 year jubilee in 2005, Jens Galschiøt has been requested to create a sculpture in honour of Odense's great storyteller. The artist has made a bronze model named: 'The Storyteller's Fountain'- a tenth the size of the final work - which can be viewed at his workshop.

AIDOH stands for Art In Defence Of Humanism. It is the denomination encompassing all the activities emanating from Jens Galschiøt's workshop. It was launched in 1995 on the occasion of the UN's social summit in Copenhagen.

Originally, Jens Galschiøt had the ambition of creating a world wide forum for artists who use their art in defence of humanism and human rights. However, the resources have not yet been found to realize the project.

ART

THE THEATRE OF REALITY

On the foundation of his artistic commitment in defence of humanism, Jens Galschiøt declares:

"I create my art manifestations to highlight humanism independently of political, religious and economical interests. To me it is equally alarming whether it is Serbs who persecute Muslims or vice versa. The metric for evaluating an atrocity is the same regardless of who the perpetrator or victim is.

In my work with sculptures and happenings, I try to ask how and in what way our ethical and moral self understanding is connected to global and local reality. I leave it to the spectators to work out the answers for themselves. I create surreal pictures of reality, i.e. symbolically posed questions. It is my aim to show the grotesque and absurd in what we normally call reality.

A happening has a language of its own, consisting of simple non-verbal symbols, and is able to focus on the different levels of complicated problems at the same time. The happening, as an art-form, is often provocative, but it is also an accepted one, especially in the cultural context of the west. It may, however, go beyond the limits of what is allowed and what is not.

In contrast to many other artists, my messages are not breaking or violating boundaries in the traditional artistic sense; in a sense they are 'conserving' them, aiming at the defence of the ethical foundations of our civilization. They question what the consequences will be when we suffer a decline in moral character and ethical behaviour. For example when racism increases, or when we allow for global economic imbalance, to let thirteen million children die every year.

My art installations function as gigantic theatrical productions. They take place not in the traditional theatre but out in the open in the real world. My sculptures set the scene. Suddenly they turn up in the street and the play starts. Politicians, the media, and the public are brought in as actors. Those involved adopt their new role with ease as the symbolism of the happenings is open for interpretation. They cannot avoid taking part no matter what they do. They contribute to the dynamics of the happening by constantly creating new symbols."

MY INNER BEAST

Mounting of one-ton heavy black concrete sculptures in famous places in twenty cities across Europe. The sculptures represent a pig in human clothes. The project has been called the biggest art happening in Europe. The purpose was, in an untraditional way, to focus on the increasing violence, intolerance, racism and persecution of minorities, that Europe is witnessing in these years.

In November 1993, the twenty sculptures were erected within 55 hours without the knowledge of the authorities. The sculptures created a lot of commotion and debate in political circles, both in the press and in the public. In several places a permanent position has been found for the sculpture that was a gift to each city. More than 100 volunteers contributed to the happening.

Documentation: Various professional video programs (Danish TV) about the course of the happening all over Europe made by cameramen accompanying the happening. Leaflet about the reactions in each city.

THE BEAST - 10 YEARS AFTER

Symbolism more intrusive than ever

On the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the installation, Jens Galschiøt and his staff initiated a search to find out what happened to each of the 20 sculptures.

The fate of the Beasts varies quite a lot. In some cities the statue has been hidden away or even destroyed. It is striking that all 3 sculptures set up in France have disappeared. Some rumours suggest that the Beasts have transformed themselves into MPs. However, to the artist this explanation seems too far-fetched.

In other cities the site of the Beasts have found prominence, in Bonn it has even been incorporated into the German state's art collection.

The anniversary was celebrated during the European Social Forum 12-15 November 2003, in Paris, where two Beasts participated in the manifestation accompanied by Survival of the Fattest and 14 Hunger Boys (see p. 22).

Copies of My Inner Beast are placed in store houses, jails, museums or squares in the following cities: Copenhagen, Odense, Aarhus, Herning, Oslo, Stockholm, Bonn, Munich, Berlin, Zurich, Innsbruck, Antwerp, Amsterdam, Brussels, Geneva, Paris, Marseille, Lyon, Barcelona and Cormano Milan.

THE SILENT DEATH

A happening highlighting the absurdity of the global imbalance and the double standard of morality in the western world. It was carried out during the UN's social summit in Copenhagen, 1995. 750 figures of children (a total of 15 tons) were fettered to benches, lamp posts etc. all over the city. The figures were made of cloth and stuffed with gravel. Their sizing was true to that of 3-9 year old children. They symbolized the 35,000 who die every day because of hunger and lack of medicine, primarily in the poorest countries.

In addition, 13,000,000 certificates, one for each child doomed to die in 1995, were distributed. 60 different certificates were printed, each in 200,000 copies. 60 different drawings of black children were scanned onto copies of real bank notes. A text in Danish and English tells about the inequality in the world and explains that the paper is a part of a comprehensive happening. About 100 volunteers took part in the happening.

THE SILENT DEATH + 5

Activists Denounce the World's Leaders

A follow-up Social Summit was held in Geneva, June 2000. At the same time Danish activists carried out a follow-up of The Silent Death.

On Place des Nations by-passers were met with a macabre view of 'children's bodies', a bonfire of 'bank notes' and young people sleeping on the ground.

The aim of the manifestation was to highlight the vanity and hypocrisy of the solemn speeches made by the world's leaders.

Do the politicians discussing inside the UN building accomplish more than the activists sleeping on the ground? - that was the crucial question raised by the activists.

This harsh criticism proved to be true. The delegates could not even agree on a follow-up summit.

THE PILLAR OF SHAME

A Sculptural Outcry

Monuments of this calibre are normally set up in memory of 'heroic' deeds.

However, here the sculpture is mounted to serve as a continual reminder of a shameful act which must never reoccur. The Pillar of Shame is a kind of Nobel Prize of Injustice.

The Pillar of Shame was set up in Hong Kong on 4th June, 1997.

This event marked the initiation of an art manifestation where Pillars of Shame would be mounted about once a year to act as a memorial to a severe infringement against humanity.

The Pillar is an original dark sculpture eight metres in height, depicting more than 50 painfully twisted human bodies.

HONG KONG

The first Pillar of Shame was set up in Hong Kong on 4th June, 1997, to denounce the crackdown on the 1989 democracy movement in Beijing.

Setting up the Pillar ahead of the hand-over on 1st July, was a way of placing the sculpture in Chinese territory, expressing an overt accusation of the old regime in Beijing, it functions as a litmus test of the authorities' vow to respect human rights and free speech in Hong Kong.

On 30th April, 2008, the Pillar was painted orange by Chinese democracy activists. The event was carried out in connection with the world wide Color Orange campaign, launched by Jens Galschiøt to denounce China's human rights violations on the occasion of the Olympic Games, August 2008.

Galschiøt and his staff came to Hong Kong to join the event but were denied entrance by the migration authorities.

Galschiøt was denied entrance in 2009 and 2010. In 2013 he finally managed to enter Hong Kong. This might have been his last visit as China has since imposed the National Security Law.

Hong Kong - recent history

The Pillar of Shame stood at the Hong Kong University for a little more than 24 years while China slowly tightened its grip on the country.

Following massive pro democratic protests China finally imposed the National Security Law in 2020, breaking its promise of "One Country Two Systems".

On December 22nd, 2021, University of Hong Kong took down the sculpture in the cover of night. In 2023 Hong Kong's authorities seized the sculpture to use it as evidence against the Democracy Movement who has been maintaining it.

The Pillar of Shame was the only monument in China to commemorate the thousands who died at the Tiananmen Square massacre. By removing the sculpture, China was trying to erase the event from their history.

But for every Chinese 'attack' the sculpture has become more known.

Galschiøt has given up the copyright and shared a 3D file of the sculpture which is now being 3D-printed all over the world. In 2023 Galschiøt printed hundreds of Lithographs depicting the Pillar of Shame and send them the Hong Kong diaspora around the world.

China took down one Pillar of Shame and got thousands in return.

Galschiøt is still the rightful owner of the sculpture and he is fighting to get it back. As he says:

"No empire last forever and one day the Pillar of Shame will be placed on Tiananmen Square to commemorate the people who died there in 1989"

MEXICO

On the occasion of May 1st, 1999, the Pillar of Shame was set up on the Zócalo in the Mexican capital. For two days the sculpture towered in front of the Parliament to pillory their oppression of the indigenous people.

The Pillar found its final site at the entrance of the village of Acteal in Chiapas, where 45 unarmed indigenous people were slaughtered by a paramilitary group on December 22nd, '97.

The erection of the sculpture was attended by hundreds of local people.

BRAZIL

On 17 April, 2000, a Pillar of Shame was erected in front of Parliament on the Square of Three Powers in the Brazilian capital. The sculpture was set up in commemoration of the 19 landless peasants who were killed by the military police in the northern state of Pará on 17 April, 1996.

The Pillar was mounted in cooperation with the MST (the landless peasants movement) and MPs of the opposition block. For two days the statue made overt accusations against the 'three powers' (Government, Parliament and the Supreme Court) who were responsible for injustice and impunity in the country.

The contentious Pillar of Shame was erected despite exacerbated resistance from the right wing and sections of the government. The Minister of Justice had stated that: "This sculpture will never be set up in front of Brazilian Parliament."

On 1st May the Pillar of Shame, dubbed 'Nobel Prize of Injustice', was set up for good in Belém, capital of the northern state of Pará, where the Eldorado massacre had taken place in connection with a land occupation.

The sculpture was set up in the wake of fierce scuffles between protestors against impunity and the police.

Despite the resistance from the elite, we stick to our promise of setting up the Pillar of Shame as a symbol opposing the oppression and violence taking a toll of lives and depriving people of their rights, Mayor Edmilson Rodrigues declared at the inauguration.

THE EARTH IS POISONOUS

An art manifestation carried out in November 1997, in cooperation with students and teachers of 'Tornbjerg Gymnasium'. On a huge open area 2.500 white crosses were set up. Each of the students and employees had received 5 crosses on which they were asked to write their personal statements on pollution, and their vision for sustainable development.

"The cross symbolizes the hope that nature will survive. Simultaneously the cross symbolizes death, the destruction of the earth as a lifegiving element, transformed into an unhealthy place. Many people will recognize the cross-park as a symbol of the great world wars. Here it becomes the symbol of the human chemical and biological warfare against nature, the victims of which will eventually be the human race itself."

YOUNG PEOPLE IN GLASS TUBES

An installation about life before death

Installation set up during the 'Youth Conference 13:24' in October, '97, in the Town Hall Square in Copenhagen. The aim of the installation was to fan debate about young people's living conditions in a modern city.

Six glass tubes, similar to the ones used in laboratories and biology classrooms were set up, each containing a naturalistic corpse of a young human 'preserved in spirits'. The glass tubes, three metres high and 70 centimetres in diameter, were intended to spark debate about the essential conditions of being young here and now.

The aim was to attract the attention of the young and old to the main issues of the conference, to highlight the state of health, physically and mentally, of young people today.

The intensity of the installation was reinforced by a piece of music created for the occasion by the young composer named Nicky Bendix. The music was a constant accompaniment to the installation.

FEAR EATS UP SOULS

At the biggest rock festival in Europe, Roskilde Festival '98, a sculpture installation was set up in cooperation with Amnesty International, to mark the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Human Rights.

The centrepiece of the installation consisted of four big 'specimen tubes' with 'torture victims' and distorted copper masks 'in spirits'. The glass tubes were surrounded by 20 elaborate candelabra with hundreds of candles, giving the feeling of some consecrated, holy room. The exhibition was visited by about 8,000 young people who wanted to sign their names to the cause of Human Rights.

THE MESSENGER

The Messenger, a 5 metre high bronze sculpture was on 29 February, 2000, inaugurated in the central square Kongens Nytorv, in Copenhagen. The sculpture was a comment on the worldwide Jubilee 2000 campaign pleading for the cancellation of poor countries' hopeless debt.

The sculpture represents a monumental symbol of a Messenger from the South. An archetypal woman with Masai-like stature equipped with cloak and staff. She is placed on a cylinder with engravings similar to rock carvings.

Two digital displays show the flow of money from North to South and vice versa. Contrary to popular belief, the South-to-North flow is dominant: for each dollar transferred from North to South 12 dollars flow the opposite way. This is based on data from the World Bank.

On the pedestal the people passing by are invited to put down their signature as a protest against the unbalanced flow of resources between the poorest and the richest countries.

During the year the Messenger campaigned for Jubilee-2000 in several Danish cities and at the rock festivals of Roskilde and Ringe. During the summit of the World Bank and the IMF in Prague in September 2000, the sculpture was exhibited to focus on the disastrous role of the two institutions, see next page.

At the end of the year a record-breaking 22 million signatures had been collected in 155 countries, calling for the cancellation of the debts of the world's poorest nations.

HANDS OF STONE

A statement on children's rights

In November 2000, an art installation composed of 3000 unique castings of children's hands was set up in co-operation with Amnesty International. The purpose was to focus on the ill-treatment the grown ups of the future are exposed to in many parts of the world: hunger, child labour, military service, prostitution, etc.

28 schools participated. The children made castings of their hands assisted by their teachers.

The hands were first exhibited on the Town Hall Square of Odense. Our hands represent manifold symbolism. They are an indispensable part of our body language which displays an infinity of expressions. At the same time they are the most important tools of our body to feel and adapt to the world. We can use our hands to form fruitful social relationships and to alter things. In this art installation these possibilities have come to a standstill, as the hands appear paralysed or frozen.

The amount of hands has an overwhelming, maybe even threatening effect. At the same time each hand is unique and points at an individual life, which is abused or destroyed.

The hands are stretched out.

Are we willing to hold our hand out to them?

The hand must remain in the mould for 3 minutes until the material has hardened. Then it can be pulled out and be filled with concrete.

NGO GATHERING IN PRAGUE

Requiem for the World Bank's Victims

In September 2000 a funeral procession was staged in Prague by Danish Jubilee 2000 supporters in cooperation with Jens Galschiøt. They were dressed in corpse costumes and carrying crosses. It was occasioned at the summit of the World Bank and the IMF. Twenty dark copper masks on 4 metre high poles shrouded in black, and a Pillar of Shame made of distorted faces; these were some of the ingredients of the event.

The aim of the manifestation was to highlight the responsibility the IMF, the World Bank, and the world's richest countries have for the victims of globalisation: 7 million children die each year as a result of the way rich countries undermine social development in the poorest countries, according to data from the United Nations.

Throughout the summit the 5 metre high female Messenger from the South was exhibited on the central square in Marianske, Namesti, to remind the public and the decision makers of the fatally imbalanced transfer of resources between North and South.

THE TENTH PLAGUE

Human blood, the Bible, and thousands of genuine American bank notes are elements of The Tenth Plague. The happening was launched in Easter of 2001 in Denmark, to denounce the greed of the pharmaceutical industry. They were filing a lawsuit about their patent rights in South Africa, cynically defending their right to decide over people's lives.

Ten big canvasses are spanned up on rough, bulky frames shaped as doors. The frames are covered with gold foil. The canvasses are coated with 2500 genuine dollar bills ordered from the Central Bank in New York. Some of the bills will speak the text In God We Trust. On the dollar notes the names of the greedy companies are painted with human blood.

The happening was intended to reach international scale, but as the pharmaceutical companies opted to give up the lawsuit the project was temporarily suspended despite the expressions of support coming from several bishops in Brazil.

About the symbolism the artist explains:

"The happening connects to the Biblical narrative of the 10th plague upon Egypt. God sends his angel of death to haunt the entire nation. All first-borns shall mercilessly die. Nobody is spared, except the Israelites who have painted an X in lamb's blood on their doors. I will reiterate this ritual, but due to political correctness we cannot use the blood of a lamb. So we'll use human blood instead to write the names of the pharmaceutical companies across the dollar bills. They have assumed the role of God as a healing and protective force, but they put their mark of salvation only on the doors of wealthy people. They have a special responsibility because they are in charge of a medical product capable of saving the lives of millions of people but instead they shrink from their responsibility."

JUST DO IT!

In May 2001, in the middle of Odense's pedestrian street, a bronze sculpture of a 12 year old, starved black boy with a large pair of shining new Nike shoes watches the well-fed Danes rushing by. JUST DO IT, says the slogan on the polished black granite pedestal, which forms a harsh contrast to the shining white Nike shoes.

"With this sculpture, I'll pinpoint the hypocrisy of companies who in their lifestyle commercials are linking their brands with concepts such as freedom and equality, and at the same time are cynically exploiting and oppressing the workers who make their products," Galschiøt says.

Nike has adapted a code of conduct, however, this by no means ensures high ethical standards. From Nike's catalogue of sins can be quoted: violence against workers in Vietnam - arbitrary layoffs of workers who spoke out in El Salvador - workers denied the right of to organize, and salaries of about 1 USD a day in several southeast Asian countries.

Ironically, the macabre sculpture was set up in the pedestrian street in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce in connection with the city's art- and cultural days.

THE HUNGER MARCH

In the summer of 2002 a crowd of 27 starving African boys cast in copper started a tour throughout the country to protest against the government's cutback of developmental aid.

Jens Galschiøt launched the initiative in cooperation with the NGO Forum in Aarhus. Hundreds of volunteers took part in the creation of the sculptures in the artist's workshop, and subsequently in the mobilisation of the boys all over the country.

In March 2003, DanChurchAid used the sculptures in their collection in support of children who have been orphaned due to AIDS.

The event takes its inspiration from the 1980s movie The March, in which a horde of starving people march towards the doors of Europe. They are compelled by the desire that the privileged, despite their best attempts to neglect them while they live be forced to see them die.

The Hunger March is a reminder that if the world's needs and distresses are not relieved, the desperate victims will some day be knocking on our door.

FREEDOM TO POLLUTE

A 28 foot replica of the Statue of Liberty spilling out smoke from her torch in Copenhagen throughout the World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg August 2002. The smoking statue symbolizes the selfish 'Freedom To Pollute' attitude that the richest countries, with the USA at the helm, flaunted at the Summit.

The City Council banned the exhibition of the sculpture in the central square of Kongens Nytorv, allegedly for esthetical reasons. However, this argument did not convince the artist, who exclaimed: "This is blatant political obstruction!" and added: "It's a farce to claim that the world's most famous sculpture - the symbol for America's liberty - is in too bad a taste to be exhibited in Copenhagen."

She has since become the icon of a continued campaign for sustainable development and has toured around Denmark, Germany France, Brazil.

SURVIVAL OF THE FATTEST

So speaks Justitia (western goddess of justice):

*I'm sitting on the back of a man
He is sinking under the burden
I would do anything to help him
Except stepping down from his back*

A huge fat woman from the West sits on the shoulders of a starved African man. The 3.5 metre high sculpture was created by Jens Galschiøt and his sculptor colleague Lars Calmar. The sculpture epitomises the imbalanced distribution of the world's resources. We are living comfortably, oppressing poor people by means of a biased and unjust system of global trade. The richest countries enforce discriminatory tariff barriers and trade subsidies to keep the poorest countries out.

The sculpture was unveiled in December 2002, in Copenhagen. Subsequently, Danish NGOs used the sculpture in their campaign against the global trade racket.

The woman holds a pair of scales as a symbol of justice, but she closes her eyes, so her justice degenerates into self-righteousness. We, symbolised by the woman, refuse to see the obvious injustice.

In the rich part of the world our main scourge is obesity due to overconsumption, while people in the third world are dying of hunger. The misery is creating floods of refugees. In a desperate attempt to entrench ourselves and preserve our privileges we resort to measures so harsh that we betray our ideals of humanism and democracy.

THE NIGHTMARE

The intention of the fire-breathing performance is to illustrate the impact of hate and extremism on all of us. Inside a landscape of gloomy sculptures a speech is recited taking inspiration from Martin Luther King's famous I have a dream, but with the signs reversed, so that brutalisation and mental callousness are highlighted. The performance admonishes society's slide towards the inhumane, one whose effects we'll soon witness if we do not succeed in curbing the demonic aspects of our minds.

The scene is a square of 15 x 15 metres. On each corner four large steel constructions are placed, each built of 3 metre high 'Greek pillars'. Placed on these pillars are the 2 metre high sculptures of My Inner Beast, illuminated by bonfires at the bottom.

On each of the Greek pillars two sculptures of the Fenris wolf (from the Norse mythology) are reaching out. Inside the wolf, cast in copper 1.5 metres long, an oil burner is installed. During the performance it spews flames 3-4 metres high.

Marking the area between the Greek pillars there are 50 thin, 3 metre high iron poles placed, each with a copper mask on the top. The masks depict distorted faces, all of them fragments from the sculpture Pillar of Shame.

On the poles copper hands holding oil lamps made of coca cola bottles are attached, the lamps symbolize Molotov cocktails. The flames illuminate the masks.

The 8 metre high Pillar of Shame is erected in the centre of the area. From each corner of the Pillar of Shame a Fenris wolf 2.5 metres long branches out. In the core of the sculptures electric kettledrums are installed.

The Nightmare at the Roskilde Festival, 2002

EUROPEAN SOCIAL FORUM

Another world is possible* - so goes the slogan of the ESF. On three occasions Jens Galschiøt has participated with his sculpture groups to highlight the topics of the meetings.

Paris 2003

The tenth anniversary of My Inner Beast was celebrated with two Beasts participating in the big manifestation accompanied by Survival of the Fattest and 14 Hunger Boys.

London 2004

About the reasons for his sculptural intervention Jens Galschiøt explains:

We westerners regard ourselves as altruists when it comes to the poor, but that altruism is an inverted version of Robin Hood's. Our reverent free trade is full of restrictions in defence of our privileges, while the third world is kept in its misery.

Athens 2006

Once again Jens Galschiøt's sculptures join the ESF: Survival of the Fattest, Hunger March, and Balancing Act.

His staff handed out more than 20,000 copies of his new poster with a photo collage and the Athens Aphorisms. The text was in Greek and English.

Malmö 2008

Four Pregnant Teenagers joined a crusade through Malmö along with a small model of The Pillar of Shame.

Galschiøt's sculptures were already familiar to many of the activists, as Survival of the Fattest and The Hunger Boys had joined the Social Forum of Scania in 2006.

Athens Aphorisms

I wonder why we broke down the Berlin Wall proclaiming that now we were all free and equal – just to use all the bricks to build up a new wall around the rich, this time to separate us from the world of the poor.

I wonder how we could convict the leaders of East Germany as criminals for their orders to shoot and kill refugees who came too close to the Berlin Wall, yet we cynically take lethal measures to protect our borders. We allow mines along the Greek-Turkish border to maim and kill refugees, and we set up scanners along the European coastline, compelling boat people to resort to even smaller boats causing thousands to drown.

I wonder how we can flaunt high-flown ideas about abortion and the inviolability of life, yet allow 30,000 children to die every day due to miserable living conditions.

I wonder how the flower children from '68, who rose in rebellion against their parents' materialism have ended up with an unprecedented consumerism here on Earth.

I wonder why we invest so many resources educating environmentalists, yet when they tell us to change our lifestyle to prevent an ecological disaster we refuse to listen.

I wonder how we can praise democracy as the only acceptable social order, yet hold new democracies accountable for loans that we lent to their previous dictators through the World Bank.

I wonder how we in the rich world, through the WTO, can force poor countries to open their markets, yet insist on our right to maintain the protection of our markets at home.

I wonder how the EU and USA can exalt the ideal of free trade, yet at the same time smash the home markets of the poorest countries by means of unfair export subsidies. For each Euro of developmental aid, we invest 5 Euro to subsidise our own production.

I wonder how we can teach our children to be socially conscious beings and to care for others, while our reality shows extol individuals displaying the opposite values.

I wonder how we in the West, who make up 20% of the world's population and swallow up 80% of all resources, can see ourselves as the most righteous and humane people on Earth.

THE GOLDEN CALF

To denounce the unethical investments of Belgian banks
November, 2005

In the Belgian city of Ghent, an eight metre high biblical Golden Calf coated with 24-carat gold foil took the lead in a procession of artists, the Clown Army, samba dancers and citizens.

Belgian campaigner Mathias Bienstman said: One can see the Golden Calf as a symbol of the idolatry of return and profit. The sculpture will call the banks into account. Why do our savings go to weapons, dictators, sweatshops and other unethical investments?

The sculpture was later installed permanently in the city of Fredericia, Denmark.

MAD COW DISEASE

The sculpture was launched during the Global Week of Action, April 2005. It was set up in the Town Hall sq. of Copenhagen to highlight the campaign for fair trade.

This peculiar piece of art consists of a pair of scales, 8 metres high. On one arm hangs a dead cow by its legs, on the other a number of Africans (in copper). The sculpture points out the grotesque fact that each cow in the EU receives a subsidy of 800 US dollars to block the poor countries from selling their products on the European market.

WTO Summit in Hong Kong, December 2005

Mad Cow Disease had come to Hong Kong together with Survival of the Fattest and The Hunger March to pinpoint inequitable world trade.

The sculptures were met with an endless series of obstructions from the manager of Victoria Park. After days of playing tug-of-war, Jens Galschiøt succeeded in setting up his sculptures in the park. Perhaps the sculptor's threat to file a lawsuit against the authorities through renowned Hong Kong lawyer Albert Ho was a decisive factor.

BALANCING ACT

Copper sculptures representing human figures performing a seemingly impossible balancing act on the top of a very tall pole of carbon fibers. They are a functioning logo and eye catcher for many events throughout the UN Decade for Education for Sustainable Development (2005-2014). The project was launched during a UN conference in India by our colleague Lars Myrthu-Nielsen from the Danish Eco-network.

THE LITTLE MATCHSTICK GIRL

Eleven copper sculptures of 10 year old girls in natural size, inspired by the tale of Hans Christian Andersen. The girls hold a bundle of matches in one hand – a mobile phone in the other. The sculptures toured through Denmark in conjunction with the municipal elections to highlight children's living conditions in 2005.

The project was carried out in cooperation with the Educator's Association, BUPL.

IN THE NAME OF GOD

A crucifix for the right to contraception and sexual education

The copper sculpture depicts a pregnant teenager in natural size crucified on a cross. It is a harsh comment on the impact of the fundamentalist branch of the Christian church on contraception and sexual education, with former President Bush and the Pope on the forefront.

Women, including teenagers, bear the brunt of the disastrous consequences of the ban on condoms based on 'Christian' morality.

"I say to you, whatever you did for one of these least brothers of mine, you did for me."

(Matthew 25,40)

Inauguration of the sculpture

The first sculpture was inaugurated on the 1st December 2006, international AIDS day, in front of the Cathedral of Copenhagen. The sculpture immediately ignited a vivid debate on the Internet.

The Teenager was displayed in cooperation with the parish council and the Dean Anders Gadegaard, who in his speech emphasized the responsibility of Christian churches in curbing the spread of AIDS.

THE PREGNANT TEENAGER, NICARAGUA

In May 2007, and once again in May 2008, the sculpture was the focal point of a campaign against the extremely restrictive abortion policies of the country. Due to this policy, enforced 'in the name of God', Nicaragua has an outrageous maternal mortality rate.

WSF 2007, NAIROBI, KENYA

The sculpture was launched globally at the World Social Forum. In Africa the Teenager has a special relevance due to the intense discussions about contraception and HIV/AIDS endemic to its countries.

A project to highlight the violations of human rights in China on the occasion of the Olympic Games in Beijing August 2008

The idea was both sophisticated and simple: We wanted to introduce The Color Orange as a symbol of protest against the human rights violations in China. The strict censorship can ban the use of obvious symbols for human rights, but the use of The Color Orange cannot be banned.

So we encouraged sports people and spectators to make vast and creative use of the color for clothing and all sorts of accessories. It could be anything, like an orange hat, camera bag, tie, pen, paper, dress, suit, bag etc. Even peeling an orange could be a poignant statement.

The Pillar of Shame in Hong Kong was painted orange in 2008 by democracy activists ahead of the June 4th commemoration of the Tiananmen Square Massacre.

Galschiøt and his staff had come to Hong Kong to join the event but they were denied entrance by the migration authorities.

A series of art installations displayed on the occasion of COP15 climate conference in December 2009 in Copenhagen:

SevenMeters.net is a manifestation that, using red blinking LED-lights, symbolizes that we are moving towards a climate catastrophe. 7 meters is the height in which the water will rise if all the ice in Greenland melts due to global warming.

Survival of the Fattest and The Little Mermaid

The 7 meters line. 24 kilometres of red blinking LED-lights appeared 7 meters high during UN's climate summit. The lights were hung up around lakes in central Copenhagen, and all around the venue of the COP15.

The Pulse of the Earth at the main entrance of COP15. A light-installation illuminates the concrete construction of the metro in a slowly pulsing red light. The light is projected onto the pillars and with the reflection from the water in the ditches a cathedral-like ambiance is created. The pulsing lights follow the geological 'pulse' of the earth itself.

Refugees in Water at the Bella Center. A group of sculptures in human size are placed in the water ditches under the metro. They are illuminated with the pulsating red light.

The Messenger at the main entrance of the COP15. A 4 meter high bronze sculpture depicts 'a messenger' with a mythical radiation. The integrated light display counts up the number of refugees that the changes in climate will create.

'Freedom to Pollute' on the Amager Fælled. A 6 meter high replica of the Statue of Liberty spilling smoke from its torch. It is placed on 'the little mountain' at the center of the area. It is strongly illuminated, so it can be seen from all over Amager and Copenhagen. The sculpture symbolizes the western world's over consumption and our reluctance to change the fact.

Balancing Acts in front of the Parliament. 10 statues balancing on 7-15 meter poles. They are made in connection with UN's Decade for Education for Sustainable Development (2005-2014) in cooperation with Eco-net.dk.

Wandering Refugees on the area 'Amager Fælled' in front of the COP15 venue. The sculptures are 10 meters high with copper faces and long African women's costumes in stark colors. Put up in a savannah-like area they pay homage to female refugees in Sudan. The sculptures, illuminated by a strong white light, symbolize the 200 million refugees created by changes in the climate that are expected to come within the next 40 years.

Survival of the Fattest besides The Little Mermaid at Langelinje. It is a symbol of the rich world's (i.e. the fat woman, 'Justicia') complacent self-righteousness. With a pair of scales in her hand, she sits on the back of a starved African man (i.e. the third world), while pretending to do what is best for him.

ENDING HOMELESSNESS

A sculpture group against poverty and social exclusion

Jens Galschiøt created 13 bronze sculptures of homeless people in co-operation with the Danish NGO Project OUTSIDE, the sculptures have been exhibited throughout European capitals. The campaign was carried out on the occasion of the European Year for combatting poverty and social exclusion in 2010.

Bronze sculptures are usually put up to honour important, powerful people, but here the noble material is used to give voice to people who normally go without.

Homeless Sculptures exhibited in the European Parliament, Brussels 2010

To each sculpture a sheet is fixed telling the persons personal story.

The sculptures have been exhibited in a large number of Danish cities and European countries:

2010: Belgium, Portugal and Hungary

2010.: In front European Parliament The sculptures made for a thought-provoking background at a hearing titled 'Ending homelessness is possible!'

2011: Romania, Norway and Ireland.

2016: Stavanger, Norway.

Man on Bench in EU Parliament (2014)

In 2014 one of the sculptures was donated by Denmark to the EU Parliament. "Man on Bench" is permanently exhibited in the hallway and Parliamentarians and visitors tend to sit next to the man for a photoshoot.

THE REFUGEE SHIP

A project focusing on poverty and refugees

In cooperation with the NGO Living Sea, Jens Galschiøt has rebuilt the fishing cutter M/S Anton to function as a refugee ship. On its tour the ship moored in harbours in Denmark and abroad. Suddenly a cutter filled to the brim with boat people appears in the middle of the idyllic harbour. The 70 passengers are not living humans, but sculptures cast in copper.

The aim of the project is to highlight the looming disaster that we'll face when the millions of people compelled to leave their homes head for the West, as a consequence of the changing climate.

The ship is not just there to convey distressing messages. In each harbour local NGOs have an opportunity to present their contribution to achieve the UN's 2015 goals of curbing poverty and hunger. In contrast to popular opinion, there are plenty of successful stories in the field of development.

Text of the banner: The UN's 2015 goals: STOP THE HUNGER!

Progress of events

2010: The project was launched with a visit to 4 Danish harbours.

2011: The itinerary embraced 13 Danish harbours in Denmark. I also visited the "Peoples Summit" on Bornholm where the 70 'refugees' participated in more than 250 events and the idyllic X-mass market in Nyhavn.

2012: The tour touched various Danish harbours and the German city of Flensburg, In Scandinavia the ship visited Stavanger in Norway and Stockholm in Sweden.

2017: Fulda River, during documenta14 in Kassel.

2017: 23 Harbours in Northern Germany. This project was realized by OUTLAW.die Stiftung.

In 2021 the cooperation with MS Anton ended. The refugees now 'live' on different boats and exhibitions on land.

2022: People's Climate Summit in Middelfart, Denmark.

2023: Hanstholm, Denmark

2014

THE MERMAIDS

In 2014 a life size mermaid, and 4 smaller models were added to the project.

The sculptures are inspired by Danish fairy tale author H.C. Andersens story The Little Mermaid. It focusses on the human exploitation of the oceans which is often unsustainable and destroying for the fragile ecosystem.

H.C. ANDERSEN IN A QUEER TIME

The original sculpture is 2 meters tall, and is a commentary on the academic discussion on the reading of H.C. Andersen's works with a queer perspective. The sculpture is composed of two classic sculptures the "Venus de Milo" and Bissen's "H.C. Andersen's portrait" from 1864 and shows Andersen's feminine sides and discusses how he could have reacted to a time when it is not unusual to flirt with his gender identity... The sculpture created much debate as it was launched in connection with a large collection for breast cancer.

FUNDAMENTALISM

An art installation by Jens Galschiøt on monotheistic dogmas

This art installation is a warning against fundamentalism. A strictly literal interpretation of the holy books creates a heartless and callous attitude that eventually leads to intolerance and fanaticism.

This project is not anti-religious. The literal interpretation is to blame, not the holy books of the three monotheistic religions. There are many beautiful words and rules in the monotheistic books, but there are also many nonsensical and callous rules rooted in medieval civilization.

The sculpture is an attempt at artistic interpretation and dialogue - a far cry from the Muhammad cartoons, which were just seeking to rile and provoke Muslims - a sort of hate speech disguised as free speech.

An outline of the sculpture

The monumental bronze sculpture consists of the letters in the word 'FUNDAMENTALISM'. The letters are 2.5 meters tall and erected in a large, closed copper circle of 9 meters. Each letter is built on the holy books from the three monotheistic religions: Christianity, Islam and Judaism.

There is only one entrance to the interior of the installation: a small hole through one of the letters (the T) above which a sign says 'Welcome'. When you come into the circle, you can only leave from the same opening, but here there is a sign saying 'NO EXIT'.

28 monitors are integrated into the base of the sculpture. One for each letter on the outside and inside of the circle.

The monitors project quotations from the holy books. On the outside of the circle they show the 'bright' citations, while the monitors on the inside show the 'dark' dogmatic quotes prescribed by the same books.

UNBEARABLE

An art installation by Jens Galschiøt about global climate changes

A 12 meter long oil pipeline in shape of a graph impales the Polar Bear 6 meters in height.

The graph shows cumulative global fossil fuel carbon emissions. It starts in year 0 and continues along the ground for 17 meters. It then rises drastically around year 1850 as human consumption of fossil fuels like coal and oil takes off. The graph ends in year 2015, six meters above the ground impaling the polar bear.

The Sculpture is a visualization of just how much humans affects the balance of the world's climate. It was made for the climate summit COP21 in Paris. Since then It has been exhibited at climate events abroad and in Denmark,

About Human trafficking and prostitution.

This 60 meter long sculpture consists of 550 male- and one female torsos. Each one of them is unique and cast in bronze. The sculpture is an artistic staging and visualization of one year in a prostitutes life.

The 550 men are the average number of customers a Nigerian prostitute has in one year, in Vesterbro Copenhagen, Denmark. This both goes for the prostitutes who chose their trade voluntarily and the ones that are forced to prostitute themselves.

COP21 IN PARIS & COP23 IN BONN

Art installations displayed at the climate summits

The purpose of the art installation was to highlight the climate crisis from different angles. The installations consisted of Unbearable, Freedom to Pollute and the refugee sculptures. On top of that the Polar Bear army paraded around town and at demonstrations.

Jens Galschiøts army of climate mascots

Galschiøts minions were seen the first time during the climate summit COP21 in Paris, Later they have been discovered at COP22 in Morocco and at COP23 I Bonn.

PUSSY POEMS

A series of sculptures about the female genital and its diversity.

For many years Galschiøt has worked with the vagina as a motif for his sculptures, as he has tried to emphasize the poetic side of it.

German art therapist and a Tattoo artist from Venezuela, arrived at Gallery Galschiøt. They were very interested in the pussy project, and stayed at the gallery to be part of it.

In 2018, two female artists, a

FUCK TOO LITTLE AND TOO MUCH

2018

An art happening about prohibitions.

In connection with a new Danish law banning the use of burkas, Galschiøt made a series of happenings during the Peoples Summit (Folkemødet).

By wearing burka and being naked under it, he challenged the legal regulations.

What happens when police tells a naked person to take off the Burka — thereby breaking the law of nudity.

One must not be naked! It's too little. One must not wear burka! It is too much.

FUCK DOUBLE STANDARDS

A sculptural commentary on Danish politicians who have cut billions from development aid, while participating in shows to collect millions for the same purpose.

The project aimed to use the fundraising show to confront the policies where billions are cut from development aid. Through collection shows, it appears as if the amount is offset by national fundraising and private initiatives. But they cut billions and collect millions.

The sculpture was sold by the Danish collection at auction, for the benefit of the world's poor.

Fuck Double Standards totaled DKK 47,775 incl. fee at 'Danmarksindsamlingen' 2018.

#DON'T FEED YOUR INNER BEAST

An art happening that is a mix of art and social media.

For the 25th anniversary of My Inner Beast, Jens Galschiøt started a street art project, making small unique Inner Beast copper masks with the text "DON'T FEED YOUR INNER BEAST". The sculptures have been hung on public walls around the world as protest art.

ROAD SIGN

In 2019, a 3x3 meter brown "Galleri Galschiøt" tourist sign was erected on Funen's E20 Highway, indicating Galleri Galschiøt location. It is at the same time a recognition of Gallery Galschiøt as being of particularly great cultural value.

This may be the most progressive sign on a highway in Europe.

The sign captures Galschiøt's visual universe and tells in the most exquisite manner what one can experience by visiting Gallery Galschiøt. It is 7 of the artist's most well-known and controversial art fairings, depicted in silhouette on the big motorway sign:

Survival of the Fattest, H.C. Andersen in a queer time, Unbearable, The Pillar of Shame, Freedom to Pollute, In the name of God and My Inner Beast.

SOLAR CELLS AT GALLERY GALSCHIØT

Crowdfunding to make the Gallery CO2 neutral

Jens Galschiøt has created a series of sculptures called solar collectors that were sold to finance a sustainable conversion of Gallery Galschiøt.

The project resulted in 1,400m² of solar cells on the roofs of the Gallery. It now produces 200,000 Kilo Watt (kW) per year, which goes into the grid, saving the world about 120 tons of CO₂ yearly. Thus Gallery Galschiøt can now boast of being CO₂ neutral.

A ROSE TO IMPRISONED WOMAN

A rose for Yasaman

In 2019 the 24 year old Iranian woman Yasaman Aryani got sentence to 16 years in prison for handing out roses without a hijab.

In her honour, Galschiøt created a rose in copper. The sculpture was auctioned away and DKK40.000 were donated to Amnesty International's work for women's rights in Iran.

As another part of the campaign, people sent thousand of 'digital roses' to the Iranian embassies.

Yasaman was released in February 2023. She is still fighting!

for the fight for her rights", says Galschiøt.

SAVE DANTE – FUCK Q-PARK'S UNDERGROUND PARKING FACILITY

DANTE ENTERS A DIALOGUE WITH THE 21ST CENTURY

An art installation by Jens Galschiøt on the occasion of the 700th anniversary of Dante's death

Background for the art installation

Galschiøt has created an art installation to bring Dante Alighieri (1265-1321) and his life and thoughts into the 21st century.

Galschiøt wants to let the sculptures enter into a dialogue with the viewer about what it is like to live in a modern pulsating city like Copenhagen.

Like Dante, he wants to involve the public in this dialogue, not least around the democratic processes - or lack thereof - in particular readability around Dante's Square.

Here, Q-Park and the City of Copenhagen want to transform Dante's current green Paradise into a Dante's black Parking Hell, despite many protests from institutions, associations, residents and businesses.

Exhibition venue: Dante's Square, Copenhagen

The art installation contains one Fuck Double Standards, fire of My Inner Beast and fire sculptures of Dante.

#QATAR6500

An art happening by Jens Galschiøt focussing on human rights violations in Qatar in preparation for the 2022 FIFA World Cup

In 2010, it was announced that Qatar would host the World Cup in 2022. According to The Guardian more than 6,500 migrant workers died in Qatar in that period, building infrastructure, like stations for the World Cup.

The necklace

Galschiøt created a symbolic necklace using 6,500 skulls. 30 members of the Danish Parliament chose to have their photo taken, wearing the necklace. Moreover it was offered to be worn by high profile politicians going to the world Cup. Apart from the necklace, thousands skull bracelets were made to wear as a symbolize the dead migrant workers in Qatar.

The project is made in cooperation with the radio program Ringdal and Christensen.

MAJOR PROJECTS

SCULPTURE GROUPS

THE RINGWEARER'S JACKET.

Sculpture in oxidized copper (50 x 60 cm). A present to Queen Margaret II commissioned by the Clothing Industry's Union in Denmark for Her Majesty's 50th birthday in 1990. Inspired by the book The Lord of the Rings by J.R.R. Tolkien which the Queen provided illustrations for a few years earlier, Galschiøt engraved the drawings into the buttons of a hobbit jacket.

Teshahud. Copper, 120 x 60 cm

ARABIC SCULPTURE GROUP

For artists fascinated of drapery and interested in clothing sculptures, the traditional Arabic clothing is of paramount interest. Therefore, Galschiøt has made several copper sculptures expressing the genuine elegance and fluffy lightness of the Arabic clothing tradition. Most sculptures consist only of the clothing, detached from its human content. They match well the Islamic culture that according to the Koran bans sculpturing of human and animal faces.

In 1991 Galschiøt conceived a project of a cavalcade of Arabic clothing. The proposal was negotiated with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Saudi Arabia, but the project was temporarily suspended because of the Gulf War, in the wake of which extremist Islamic groups have been invigorated. Such groups oppose this sort of sculpture. An attempt will be made to realize the project privately in the Arabian Peninsula.

COCOON

A sculpture group made for the Danish exhibition in the Art Pavilion at the World Exhibition Expo 92 in Seville, Spain. The Cocoon consists of 22 big steel shields, each measuring 1.5 x 4 m. The shields are penetrated by faces made of bronze.

In addition, Galschiøt contributed about twenty bronze sculptures and a working silversmith's workshop. The exhibition was arranged in cooperation with The Mobile Gallery in Kolding, which had received a 76 m long submarine as a gift from Gorbachev. French artist Jean Dewasne was enlisted to be responsible for the outside ornamentation, and Galschiøt for fitting the inside of the submarine. The vision of establishing a cultural growth centre for the young and unemployed in the submarine was never actualised.

Documentation: A professional video program about the exhibition.

MISCELLANEOUS SCULPTURES

In Jens Galschiøt's workshop in Odense sculptures are created in all sizes from ram's heads (5 x 5 mm) to fountains weighing thousands of kilos.

He usually expresses himself in naturalistic and organic forms. The influence of the Spanish architect Antoni Gaudí and the almost occult organic forms of the 'Jugend' style is striking. His expressions are often influenced by surreal distortions and archetypical imagination, centred on simple and almost banal but strong symbolic images.

ORNAMENTATION OF A NURSERY GARDEN

Major ornamentation carried out in cooperation with the artist Ivan Boytler for Europe's biggest nursery of roses, 'Rosanova' on the island of Funen.

Seven big glass mosaics, each of 1 x 2 m of melted glass, copper and steel hung up between nine ceramic pillars with inlaid bronze roses, and two big water fountains consisting of ceramic pillars and glass. Organic vegetation of copper and bronze roses are set up to ornament the entrance of the nursery. The ornamentation was presented at a big gardening exhibition, where it was awarded first prize.

THE OCCULT TEMPLE

scenography for the performance ELYSIUM, 1995

A coherent installation shaped as a holy cathedral with archetypical characters connecting to our concept of the original religious dimensions of man, understood as the encounter between male and female, life and death, nature and culture. The stage was set up in a 500 m² darkened hall in Galschiøt's workshop. The arrangement consisted of the cocoon shields, gas torches, totem like copper sculptures, water fountains, archetypical copper sculptures, 24 tons of sand, 20 tons of stones, cloth, light effects etc. - in addition to paintings by the surrealist Bjoern Hugaard. The performance included more than 50 dancers, actors, and musicians. The project was supported among others by the Cultural Foundation in 1995.

THE LITTLE PRINCE

'The earth is poison' - a sculpture for children and other philosophical souls

A sculpture group depicting the universe of the little prince and aiming to symbolize the essence of the fairytale of Saint-Exupéry. Seven blocks of granite (asteroids) are 'floating' in a circle around a 2-metre high planet (the Earth). The universe is populated by creatures (bronze sculptures) that the little prince meets on his way. He finds out that "the essential is invisible to the eye and only through the heart can you really see".

The sculpture was mounted in May 1996, in the central square of Fuglebjerg in Sealand. It provides possibilities for the children to play 'the ground is lava,' climbing and jumping around on the sculptures of stone and bronze.

Copper sculpture exhibited on the occasion the 50th anniversary of OMEP (French acronym for 'Organisation Mondiale pour l'Éducation Pré-scolaire'), 1998. The organisation is an NGO related to UNESCO. Its aim is to improve future conditions of life for all children on Earth.

CIVILIZATION

The sculpture Civilization, measuring 180 cm, is a symbolic expression of this endeavour. The round form symbolises the Earth as an entity. The organic surface of the globe symbolises the Earth as a living organism. The alphabets and the figures on the surface are symbols of the accumulated knowledge and wisdom of humanity.

1999

THE OCTOPUS ROBE

The sculpture is based on the Octopus Robe, designed by one of the world's most renowned Haute Couture designers, Danish Erik Mortensen (Balmain). As early as 1989, Mortensen and Galschiøt agreed to collaborate on transforming the art of Haute Couture into sculptural art. However, the idea did not come to fruition until 1998, when the School for Fashion and Design in Odense requested the two artists create a sculpture for the new buildings of the school.

Just before his death in 1998, Erik Mortensen designated his creation the 'Octopus Robe' as a model for the sculpture that was set up in front of the School in September, 1999.

Danish art critic Erik Meistrup describes the sculpture this way:

The deep understanding and interpretation of the relations between the body, the form of costume, the interplay of draping in the costume, combined with the gracious movement of the person – that's the very merging point between Jens Galschiøt and Erik Mortensen, the manifestation of which is a frozen flash of lingering grace emanating its radiance into the open, where the sculpture constantly fluctuates with the alteration of light and weather.

CLOTHING SCULPTURES

Jens Galschiøt's creations of clothing sculptures establish a close harmony between artistic expression and reality of the fashion world. He has cooperated with Jean Voigt, Erik Mortensen and other fashion designers.

He says:

"By capturing and re-creating these experiences in copper, I create an effect so as to compel us to visually re-asses our surroundings. I'm particularly fascinated by costume. I try to allow the costume to retain its own aura while at the same time preserving the body's presence as an essential part of the sculpture. Drapes have a particular fascination for me. These mysterious folds rippling from the body seem to have a short life of their own in the instance of the moving body. It is these short flashes of beauty and intimacy that I attempt to capture in my sculptures. In many of these, I work with the emptiness as an integral part of the experience, for instance by releasing my costumed sculptures from their human contents, or by letting my sculptures be wrapped inside a veil of material. In this way the observer, aided by his own fantasy, can mentally 'fill in' the void with his own impressions. My point of view is that no work of art can live up to the human fantasy, and if my sculptures merge with the imagination of the observer, I have indeed achieved my goal."

Jens Galschiøt

THE UTMOST SILENCE

A display of modern society's vulnerability 2001

In co-operation with the Bruthalia Theatre, Jens Galschiøt had his debut as set designer in a performance about Ted Kazcynski, dubbed the Una-bomber, one of modernity's most renowned terrorists. The settings of the play alternate between ancient Alexandria and present day's high-tech society.

The play was set up in October and November 2001 in Galschiøt's workshop, and in various Danish cities. The tragedy of September 11th endowed the performance with a poignant relevance.

The scenography was created as a sculpture in its own right.. It has at one end an 'organic' eradiation. Here you find the library of Alexandria as a symbol of traditional wisdom. At the other end with 'industrial' character, the Alexandrian lighthouse represents technical innovation. The centre platform symbolizes the present.

The scenography has been installed in Galschiøt's gallery, where it on various occasions makes up an ideal framework for debates on social, ethical, and cultural issues.

WHY ME ?

The 2.5 m high bronze sculpture weighs 250 kg and represents a woman screaming desperately to the sky, asking why her God has abandoned her.

The sculpture was exhibited at a sculpture park connected to Vaerkstedsгалeriet in Otterup on Funen, until it was stolen on the 16th of September, 2001.

"The thieves must have been very interested in art. They moved a heap of boulders, backed a car with a trailer into the park and somehow got the sculpture loaded into the trailer", Jette Heckmann, the owner, tells.

THE FIERY SOUL

On the occasion of the UN's International Year of Volunteers 2001, Jens Galschiøt created the copper sculpture, The Fiery Soul, a stand with a gas flame at the top. The intention was to highlight the effort of the many volunteers in Denmark and all over the globe.

"I want to give a visual expression of the manifold functions of voluntary work. As a leitmotiv I have chosen the fire and so the light. The fire has since the earliest times been a place people *gathered around. It represents the light in the darkness, hope. I wish to point at both The Fiery Soul,- the prime mover, who gets things moving, but also at the thousands of people who bear the brunt of the daily grind as volunteers. The fire represents the heat which is necessary for our survival as human beings", Jens Galschiøt says.*

A series of 40 Fiery Soul Awards - given to associations for outstanding volunteering initiatives

JUSTITIA

A decoration for the courthouse of Odense, 2001

Justitia, the goddess of justice, grows out of the wall with a sword and scales, and watches over the trial. She is clad in fishing net drawing a connection to Kraka, a beautiful and wise woman of Norse mythology.

The scales in balance symbolise a just sentence. The sword is a symbol of the execution. The blindfold may seem odd, but since the 16th century it has been seen as a symbol of impartiality.

The aim of the sculpture to honestly express the function of the building where it is located. No secret should be made of the court's authority. We have to do away with a powerful institution before which the defender does not appear on equal footing.

This implies by no means that I support an inhumane 'law and order' judicial system, the sculptor emphasizes.

CATWINGS

at The Fashion Fair, Bella Center, Copenhagen February 2003

The title is a contraction of catwalk and wings. This series of unique copper sculptures is based on female plastic mannequins. By the seductively beautiful radiation the sculptor is focused upon the polished surface and seduction that marks our society, and of which the fashion industry is an exponent.

On the surface of it, the sculptures are seductively beautiful, the artist explains, but closer inspection reveals that they are unsubstantial beyond their façade. I am exhibiting these perfect plastic women that are as cold as ice virgins, in order to make the spectators reflect upon the turning point our world has reached.

QULISSEKROPPE

The GSU Fair August 2003 for gold, silver and watches

At the GSU fair in 2003 Jens Galschiøt exhibited a series of sculptures. The famous 8 meter high Pillar of Shame was set up at the entrance.

In the halls you could find four-tains meters tall and huge masks in copper created specifically for this exhibition.

Princess Alexandra (to with a bouquet of flowers) visiting the fair. To the right a huge copper mask.

FROM DUCKLING TO SWAN

Based on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy-tale The Ugly Duckling, 2003

This bronze sculpture was donated by the staff of Micro Matic on the occasion of the company's 50th anniversary.

The sculpture tries to capture the very moment where the ugly duckling looks in the water-mirror and finds out that it has become a beautiful, white swan.

The symbolism of the fairy-tale, and of the sculpture itself, tells that to find your self-esteem, you have to look yourself in the eyes to see what you truly are. This truth may seem banal, but is probably one of the most difficult things to do. Many people live their whole lives without discovering their self-esteem.

THE ASIAN PAVILION

A tent shaped as a surreal huge insect designed for Images of Asia 2003

A giant sculpture in the form of a surreal huge insect, similar to a daddy-long-legs, set the scene of the inauguration in Odense of the festival Images of Asia. The 300 square metre and 12 metre high pavilion consists of seemingly incongruent materials such as titanium, stainless steel, canvas and bamboo. The choice of materials expresses the enormous contrasts within the Asian continent. In Asia, with over half of the world's population, high-tech and ancestral know-how live side by side – the standard of living reaches from extreme poverty to modern consumerism.

About the construction, the until now biggest created at Jens Galschiøt's workshop, the sculptor declares: In spite of the contrasted materials the sculpture appears as an organic whole, almost as a surreal huge insect. Its 10 metre long legs carry a mountain of large titanium plates. It is one of the most peculiar sculptures I have ever made, but I think that Eastern culture deserves to be displayed in a space of mythical radiation.

Each leg ends up in a fountain with three middle-age gargoyles squirting water out into the basin.

H.C. ANDERSENS HOTEL

Sculptural decoration

Sculpture installation with famous fairy tale author Hans Christian Andersen, in front of the hotel bearing the same name.

One part is the bench on which the author sits. Another part is the pillars holding the entrance to the hotel.

This sculpture of the famous fairy tale author, is one of the most photographed works in the city center of Odense. The entire sculpture consists of 3 pillars, each focusing on one of Andersen's fairy tales, and a bench with feet instead of legs.

The pillars around the entrance to the hotel depict characters from "Klods Hans", The Steadfast Tin Soldier, and The Little Mermaid. The bench with feet is located between the second and third pillar. All the sculptures are made of copper.

THE STORYTELLER'S FOUNTAIN

An interactive monument to Hans Christian Andersen - from hopeful beginnings to deep disappointment

Jens Galschiøt launched a design for a monument to the world-famous storyteller to mark the 200th anniversary of his birth in 2005. The sculpture is a fountain cast in copper and bronze, 10 metres in diameter. On the edge Hans Christian Andersen sits, bathing his feet in the water. At the opposite side the edge takes the form of a chair. Here a person can sit down to tell stories, not necessarily by Andersen. The aim is to invigorate a narrative tradition.

The sculpture should integrate figures from all the fairy-tales of Andersen, perhaps more than 1,000. The spectator is spurred to guess as many of the figures as possible.

The beginning seemed promising. The municipality had unanimously decided to grant the bulk of the funding, more than 500.000 €. Contributions had come from local foundations, commercial sectors, trade unions, and public subscriptions.

But then the financial crisis hit. The foundation went bankrupt and the municipality was in alarming need of money, so they withdrew the grant that unfortunately had not been made legally binding.

The statue of Andersen was finished in January, 2005. The whole sculpture was never finished due to the financial crisis.

HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN drowned in the harbour

Cheerful Funeral

In August 2011 a sad conclusion was inevitable: The Storyteller's Fountain had to be suspended. The money had evaporated, and more seriously support from the municipality had faded away. The civil servants had proposed four sites, all of which were far off the beaten track, in fact a showcase of mockery and obstruction

Instead, Jens Galschiøt decided to defy the situation. He invited politicians and citizens to a spectacular and cheerful funeral.

On 8th October the procession started at the Town Hall sq., where a big sculpture of Hans Christian Andersen (planned to be a part of The Storyteller's Fountain) had been displayed for 6 years. The sculpture was loaded onto a carriage, which, followed by thousands of people, proceeded to the Odense harbour where it was sunk into the water.

Hans Christian Andersen is back in town

Many people missed poignant sculpture in the Town Hall sq, so Galschiøt has filled the gap with the sculpture The Drowned Storyteller, that was part of a group of sculptures exhibited at the prestigious Randers Art Museum. April 2012.

HISTORICAL TRACES

A dock worker monument for Aarhus Harbour (2017)

The union LO Aarhus partnered up with Jens Galschiøt to commission a dockworker monument for the harbor in Aarhus. The sculpture depicts a typical work environment at Aarhus Harbor, in the old days.

The installation consists of 7 people cast in copper-bronze and stainless steel. The Salling Foundation funded the sculpture installation, which was inaugurated in 2017, while Aarhus was European Culture City.

HOMO SAPIENS

22 unique copper sculptures. Located at Fagbevægelsens Hovedorganisation (Unions Office) in Copenhagen.

They are characterized by a sketchy modelling with the appearance of fine details and an almost organic surface. In some of them you will see large portions of the human body. The others, the body will almost disappear in the material. The sculptures are in a limbo between construction and deconstruction.

They are strong in their pride and foundation, but they are under attack and their physical form are in dissolution. Their trembling expressions, their deep and cracked surfaces, sends colored waves of longing and frustration into the skies against the God, who shaped them from clay thousands of years ago. The edition, the version we knew so well and were so comfortable with, is changing. We have changed and we have changed the world around us! The material is still the same, but as the world has changed, we have also. We had to -or did we? And where are we heading?

FRANCISCAN MONKS

An art installation by Jens Galschiøt for Svendborg

The Franciscan monks are located on the The Monastery Square in Svendborg as a memory of the monks of the Order of Friars Minor who stayed in the area 800 years ago.

The monks, which consist of copper and bronze, add a special cultural message to Svendborg, which makes this chapter in the city's life present.

THE FALL OF THE BERLIN WALL

Model of The Fall of the Berlin Wall

A monument of bronze and concrete in memory of the fall of the Berlin Wall. The monument, surrealistic in its appearance, will consist of 25 sculptures in human size. Two rows of 'half' persons enter from the two sides of the wall, becoming whole as they walk out again. Some of the figures will represent 'the foreigners' as an integral part of the German people. Thus, the monument will serve as an antiracist admonition. Galschiøt hopes it will be possible to set up the monument in Berlin on a remaining piece of the wall. The former Federal Chancellor, now deceased, Willy Brandt, supported the idea, and as early as 1990 the Chief Burgomaster of Berlin donated to Galschiøt 1.5 tons of the Berlin Wall. The pieces are exhibited in his sculpture park. On various occasions he had contact with the local government with the aim of realizing the project. However, presently the prospects of it happening do not seem promising.

THE BONFIRE OF DESTRUCTION

A genuine dollar burning machine flogging the world's conscience

This installation is planned to be carried out on the occasion of an important international event, e.g. a summit focusing on issues such as the poorest countries' disastrous burden of debt, the imbalanced global trade, our squandering of the world's resources, child labour, the status of women, etc.

An eight metre high glass tube is placed on a base. In the bottom of the tube a gas flame burns. Every 15 seconds a genuine 1-dollar bill falls down from a device at the top of the tube. The bill falls towards the flames until it burns with a little 'puf', and a bright, shining flash, like a falling star. The flash is visible from a long distance.

Within four days a total amount of 25.000 USD in single bills are destroyed.

About 300 human figures seated on chairs around the 'fireplace'. They are placed in circles, 5 rows, like the seats at a theatrical performance. The petrified, passive, and powerless observers are dressed in second-hand, threadbare clothing.

Throughout the event the installation will be displayed on the Internet, and if possible also on huge screens in big cities around the world.

2017 AN OCEAN OF INEQUITY

The installation consists of 3,600,000,000 stones of 8 mm each, symbolizing the poorest half of the world's population. The stones are spread out on an area of 70 x 70 meters, in a layer that is 20 cm high in average. The stones are divided by path ways for walking. Each pile of stones might symbolize a specific group of people e.g. continents or (il)literacy.

In the middle of the area 8 golden pedestals rise one meter above the 'sea'. On top of each pedestal is one small stone which is protected by a small glass container (bell jar!). The 8 stones symbolize the world's richest men, who own as much as everyone in the huge sea of stones.
